

Basic Detail Report

Old Moscow

Date

1952

Primary Maker

Georgy Zelma

Medium

Gelatin silver print

Description

A collection of three photographs, two of which illustrate religious architecture of old Moscow and one photo showing a period steam shovel razing an unknown structure. During this era, the last days of Stalin's life, much of the architectural face of Central Moscow was renovated, many historical building were razed and replaced by sterile and massive government buildings embracing the pyramidal and geometric Stalinesque style popular at the time.

Dimensions

Image (Left Image): $2\frac{7}{8} \times 2\frac{1}{8}$ in. (7.3 × 5.4 cm) Image (Center Image): $3 \times 2\frac{1}{8}$ in. (7.6 × 5.4 cm) Image (Right Image): $3\frac{1}{4} \times 2\frac{1}{8}$ in. (8.3 × 5.4 cm) Support: $4\frac{3}{8} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$ in. (11.1 × 15.9 cm)