Description

Landscape with a tan building with a pink roof. There is water in the foreground of the scene which reflects the building. This building appears to be on a dyke made of stone with five supports built into an adjacent to the building. The building had two doors and a small window on the side facing the road, one small window on the right side, and two windows protruding out of the roof with a chimney between them. This appears to be the old mill in Ploumenach when compared with the painting titled "Old Mill, Ploumenach, France". There is a body of water in the middle ground on the right side of the image and brown trees or rock formations on the left side of the image. There are several buildings in the distance on the right side.
