Description

Unstretched landscape of a house in a field by a river. The foreground is dominated by rolling yellow-green hills, which sit in front of a blue river. In the midground, a beige path follows the line of the river from the right edge, going most of the way across to the left before turning and disappearing behind a tree. Just right of center is a white house with an orange roof and a chimney. In the upper right corner of the image is a gray-brown rock formation. There is a dark green tree between the house and the river. The sky is mostly filled with white clouds, but some blue shows in the center.
